TO VOTE ON NEW CITY HALL JULY 7

Frankfort To Hold Special Election On $12,900 Bond Issue

As a result of their village hall having been condemned sometime ago, the Frankfort village board has been making efforts to get PWA aid and to float a local bond issue for building a combination village hall, fire department, jail and community center. The firm of architects of Bernard & Co., of Hammond, Ind., have been engaged to draw plans for the new building.

On Wednesday night, July 6 at 8 p. m., a public meeting will be held in the Frankfort Hall Co., Hall to acquaint the citizens with the proposed project. Pictures of the new building will be shown and the various details will be explained.

The next day, Thursday, July 7th the citizens of Frankfort will be asked to vote for or against the issuance of a $12,900 bond issue. The special village election is to be held in the present old village hall. The polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Included in this proposed bond issue is $800 for an additional lot to the hall site. The old Feil lot adjoins the present village property is now under option of the village board.

The proposed new municipal building is to be built of brick one story with a basement 48x60 equipped with a kitchen so it can be used for public affairs and banquets. The fire department is to have room for two trucks.

There is to be a special room for the mayor's office, a council room and a two cell jail, each cell to be equipped with a lavatory.

If the project is approved a PWA setup will be arranged for and work begun this summer.

Beecher Will Hold Big 4th of July Celebration Mon.

The greatest celebration in the history of Beecher's many big July 4th observances will take place this year in beautiful Fireman's Park just west of the Dixie Highway in Beecher. Encouraged by the magnificent success of last year's event which packed the spacious park with guests from a wide area, the Beecher Volunteer Fire Department has undertaken to put on a celebration, this year which far surpasses anything attempted here in scope.

The day's activities will open at 10:00 a. m. with a parade, the first in about thirty years here, which promises to be a big feature. Many unusual and elaborate floats are guaranteed from both local and outside establishments. Bands, led by regular drum majors, will add much to the spectacle. Plenty of eats and refreshments will be available; and the park provides an ideal spot for picnic lunches. Prof. Wegert and his augmented band are scheduled to provide music periodically throughout the day. In the afternoon, a classy kittenball game between top-notch teams is on the program. The entertainment features include the 'Four Martins' and 'Magie and Jiggs', popular professional acts, and local talent headed by the 'Western Sweetheart' and the 'Brands and Scheiwe' team, who are outstanding in this neighborhood for entertainment. The entire program will be staged both in the afternoon and evening. The grounds will also present the carnival spirit with various rides and concessions for the added amusement of all.

Formal Opening at Oswald's Grove

Mike Oswald, proprietor of Oswald's Grove on 159th St., 1 1/2 miles west of Wolf road, will stage a formal grand opening at his newly remodeled place on Thursday and Friday nights, July 14th and 15th. He invites the public to come out. He has installed the most beautiful service bar in the county. Come enjoy a great floor show each night. A great array of talent. A big special show. Come early. Free eats, fun, favors, orchestra, dancing.

Tinley Mayor Is Elected Head B. I. Bar Association

Mayor Francis Harper of Tinley well known attorney was elected President of the Blue Island Bar Association in Blue Island Wednesday evening. The association is composed of twenty of the best legal lights in the southwestern part of Cook County.

Miss Ruth Geuther of Mokena Is A Pretty June Bride

Miss Ruth Geuther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Geuther of Mokena and Earl Cutler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cutler of Homer Township, were united in marriage last Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the Immanuel Lutheran church in Mokena, the Rev. Walter Geffert, performing the marriage ceremony in which the double ring service was used.

To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Mrs. Roy Barnes of New Lenox, sister of the bride, the bridal couple entered the church and proceeded to the altar. The church was prettily decorated with garden flowers, palms and ferns.

The bride was gowned in white net, and wore a tulle veil. She carried an arm bouquet of white larkspur and brides' roses.

Attending her were her sister, Mrs. Robt. Gilmore of Mokena as matron of honor who wore pink organza and carried an arm bouquet of blue and pink larkspur. Miss Evelyn Cutler, sister of the groom served as bridesmaid and was attired in blue organza and carried an arm bouquet of larkspur.

The groom was attended by Rev. Ernest Snodgrass of Marley as the best man.

The ushers were Francis Nelson, Robt. Geuther and Wm. Hansen. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Geuther in Mokena.

The bridal couple left the same evening on a two week's honeymoon, the destination remaining unannounced.

The bride taught the Summit Hill public school for a number of years. The host of friends of the bridal couple wish them much happiness.

Jeanette Wallace And Beverly Hills Man Married

At a simple ceremony in which the single ring service was used, Miss Jeanette Wallace of Mokena, youngest daughter of Mrs. Bertha Wallace, and Mr. John Jahnke, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jahnke of Beverly Hills, Chicago were united in marriage in the parsonage of the Ridgewood Baptist church in Joliet last Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. The pastor, Rev. L. M. Clark officiated.

The bride was lovely in a white lace gown, with a fitted bodice, long tight sleeves and a slight train. She carried an arm bouquet of white sweetheart roses and baby breath.

Miss Lucille Teske of Mokena was maid of honor. She was gowned in a powder blue lace frock made with a jacket and short puffed sleeves. She carried an arm bouquet of pink tea roses.

Mr. Albert Jahnke attended his brother as best man.

Following the ceremony the bridal party departed to the Louis de Joliet Hotel where the wedding dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Jahnke are enjoying a honeymoon trip in Michigan.

Rev. R. Schellhase Graduate With High Honors

The Rev. Reuben C. Schellhase, pastor of the Methodist church at Sheridan, Ill., son of Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Schellhase of Frankfort, Ill., was graduated on June 9th from the Garrett Biblical Institute, a theological seminary affiliated with the Northwestern University at Evanston, with distinction.

In 1936 he completed the four year Bachelor of Arts course at the University of Chicago in two and a half years, receiving three scholarships. This June Rev. Schellhase received The Bachelor of Divinity degree, having completed the three year course in two years.

Last year, he was honored with a first year scholarship in recognition of high scholastic attainments and this year was elected by the faculty to the John Mareva Fellowship, beside graduating with distinction.

At present Rev. Schellhase is completing his work for the Master of Arts degree which he will receive in August.

V. H. SCHEER DIES FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

Valentine H. Scheer, aged 64 years, well known former resident of Mokena and late of Tinley Park, died at his home in Tinley June 27 at 1 a. m., following a lingering illness.

He was the son of William Scheer and his wife Marie, nee Harmening, and was born in Frankfort on June 10th, 1874. He was baptized and confirmed in the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena by the late Rev. C. Schaub. On May 1st, 1902 he was united in marriage with Miss Helen Yunker of Orland township.

He was engaged in the concrete building business for awhile in Mokena, building the concrete block house in Mokena now owned by W. C. Schmuhl. He also built the parsonage of the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena. Later on he conducted a concrete manufacturing plant in Tinley Park which he continued to operate until poor health forced him to quit the business a few years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Helen, 10 brothers-in-law, 8 sisters-in-law, 2 nieces and 2 nephews and many other close and distant relatives and a host of friends.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the Hirsch Funeral Home in Tinley Park to the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena at two o'clock with the Rev. Theodore Haefele officiating. Interment was made in the St. John cemetery south of Mokena.

Mr. Scheer was a charter member of the St. John Brotherhood and also a trustee of the church board for several years.

Will Hold Pageant Sunday

The St. Peter Evangelical church of Frankfort will hold their Sunday school and church services in the Geuther woods this coming Sunday morning at the usual church hours if the weather permits. Supper will be served from 5 to 7 o'clock and in the evening a pageant will be presented as described in this paper two weeks ago. In case of rain the Sunday school and church services will be held in the church.

Outdoor Moving Pictures In Mokena Every Wed. Night

A free outdoor movie will be held on the Mokena depot grounds every week for the summer. A very good sound movie program consisting of a serial picture, comedy and other features will be shown. A test movie was given Tuesday night and went over good. The picture will be shown about 8 o'clock. The same operator who is putting on the Orland Park show on Saturday nights is putting on the one in Mokena. A number of local business men are sponsoring the project.

Archdeacon To Speak In New Lenox Church Sunday

The Venerable N. B. Quigg, Archdeacon of the Diocese of Chicago, will be the elebrant at the Choral Eucharist at Grace Episcopal church at New Lenox, Sunday July 3 at 9 a. m. The service will be offered on behalf of the welfare of the country as the Church's recognition of the 4th of July and its importance in the life of American people. The archdeacon will preach on some important phase of American life today as it is related to the Christian faith.

The Rev. E. M. Ringland, Vicar of Grace Church, will assist the Archdeacon at the celebration of the Holy Communion.

Everyone is invited to this service of rededication to the fundamental principles of American life, and it is hoped that this service will become an annual part of peoples' observance of the 4th of July.

Notice

Notice is hereby given that there will be a meeting at the school house District 159, Mokena, Will Co., at 8:00 p. m. on Monday July 11, 1938 of legal voters of said district, to pass on and accept a budget for the ensuing year for school purposes.

History To Be Repeated At Marley July 4th

There may be 'hardly a man alive who remembers that famous' ride, but there are many alive today who will remember for a long time the reenactment of it which is to be presented as part of the historical pageant, "The Passing Years", Monday, at the 56th Annual Marley Fourth of July picnic in Storm's grove, Marley.

The production depicts the growth of America from the time of Columbus to the present. It is divided into four parts, a prologue and three episodes, each part dealing with a period in American history. The prologue begins in 1492 with the discovery of America and ends in 1776 with the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The first episode covers the period from 1776 to 1830; the second from 1830 to 1884; the third from 1884 to 1938.

A chronicler, played by Chas. Sass, will announce the scenes, while a libretto, written by Mrs. Ward Bush, will be read over a public address system by her daughter, Miss Clara Bush. The event will be presented at 10:30 a. m. daylight saving time upon an outdoor stage in Storm's grove.

Music for the production will be furnished by the New Lenox Grade school band under the direction of Mr. R. B. Wight. Piano accompaniments for several of the scenes will be played by Mrs. Howard Ayres. Miss Louise Storm, teacher of music from A. O. Marshall grade school, Joliet will sing as a part of one of the episodes, and will lead the group singing.

Those in charge of production are Mrs. Ward Bush, Mrs. Edward Sproat, Mrs. Loren Sass, and Edward Stevens. The costume and property committee consists of Mrs. G. W. Bush, Eyeyn Cutler, Clara Bush, and Laura Bachman. The group responsible for the erection of the stage includes Homer Sabin, John Handorf, Mr. G. W. Bush, James Tilsey and John Cutler.

Mrs. W. Bush states that she has received excellent cooperation from the organizations that she asked to take part. (Those participating include the Marley Women's club; the Gleaners; the Homer Young People's club, the Marley Missionary club, the New Lenox 4H club and the New Lenox Boy Scouts.)

The committees for the picnic in general are as follows: Mr. Ernest Snodgrass, program; Harry Sproat, refreshment stand, Dan Sass lunch stand, Russel Lauffer, sports. Edward Stevens, publicity, Homer Sabin, 'concessions' Mrs. Arthur Lauffer, finance, Mr. G. W. Bush, decorations, Ed Marshall, grounds, William Hansen, clean up.

On Cash Basis

The Brookwood Grocery store of New Lenox announces that beginning July 1st this store goes on a cash basis. The management points out that by doing a cash business the store will be able to sell merchandise cheaper than if credit is carried. Stores in nearby neighboring towns who have gone on a cash basis, claim the plan has been very successful.

VFW Bunco Party

The Auxiliary to the Wm. Martin Post No. 725, VFW of Frankfort, will sponsor a card and bunco party in St. Mary's hall in Mokena Wednesday evening July 6th.

There will be a prize for each table and also a door prize. Refreshments will be served. Playing will start at eight o'clock. Everyone is invited.

Carl Brockman Taken By Death

Frankfort lost one of its oldest citizens through the death of Mr. Carl Brockman on June 14, following a very short illness.

Mr. Brockman was born April 14, 1853. He was married to Lena Gro-now who passed away in 1924. He spent his entire life in this locality. He was a carpenter by trade.

Surviving are an only daughter, Mrs. Chas. Schroeder of Chicago Heights and a sister, Mrs. John Conrad of Monee.

Funeral services were held from his late home on Friday June 17, with burial in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

Meeting At Mokena July 8 To Form A New Civic Club

On the evening of July 8th a meeting is scheduled to be held in the Mokena public school at 8 p. m., for the purpose of forming a local civic club with the object of doing constructive work for the benefit and improvement of Mokena. A hearty invitation is extended to all those interested in improving Mokena to attend this meeting and aid in the formulation of a civic club.

Band Meeting

The Regular meeting of the Mokena Band Parents Association will be held in the school Wednesday evening July 6th, at 8 o'clock.

Insuring of the band instruments will be up for discussion.

To Hold Picnic

The Frankfort Methodist Sunday School will hold their annual picnic on July 4th on the Lincoln highway across from the Schmuhl farm.

An elaborate program has been arranged. Candies and refreshments will be sold at the stand.

A cordial invitation is extended to all.

R. Hensel In Drug Business 50 Years

Richard Hensel, well known Mokena druggist has been in the drug store business for fifty years. He gained his early experience in the leading drug stores of Chicago and for fifteen years was employed in the drug store departments of some of the big department stores. Mr. Hensel relates that one of the big stores used to buy a carload of Peruna for $4,000 and sell the preparation at 49c a bottle as a leader. It would take from three to four months to sell a carload.

Mr. Hensel is now seventy years old and operates a fine up to date drug store in Mokena.

An Answer

In answer to the many communications relative to further taxes contemplated by the Governor, bills for which are now pending before the legislature. Information has been presented to the members indicating that sufficient funds are now in the state treasury to care for the relief needs of the next few months and therefore I shall refuse to support any taxing measure that comes before me. This for the information of those who have written and for those who intend to do so.

REMEMBER FIELD DAY TOMORROW

Tomorrow, Saturday, July 2nd is the big day. The annual Field Day of the combined bands of New Lenox, Frankfort, Tinley Park and Mokena will be held at the Frankfort Grove afternoon and evening. A big time assured for all. See the big balloon ascension and parachute jump. See the big adv. in this issue for more particulars.

Winners

In a recent live stock judging contest held in Will County the Frankfort-New Lenox Club set a high mark. Marvin Cappel won first prize, Chester Ebert, 2nd and Howard Strassenberg 3rd. The winners will take part in the state judging contest at Urbana on Aug. 1st.

Closed on The 4th

The Frankfort postoffice which has usually remained open for a few hours 4th of July morning, will not be open at all this year according to announcement of Mrs. Katie Fink, the postmaster.

Reappointed

Mrs. Katie Fink has been re-appointed postmistress at Frankfort. She has held this office a number of years with a fine record.

Garden Club News

Did you ever stop to think how fortunate we are who have lovely gardens of flowers and lawns and how many thousands of people in a city like Chicago, have never seen a picture like our flowers present? And would you not like to share some of the beauty of your garden with these less fortunate ones by making little bouquets to be sent to them?

These bouquets will be distributed among the poor and the shut-ins of various institutions who would not see a flower all year, if it were not for us who are sharing our wealth of flowers with them.

The Mokena Garden Club asks you to remember and spend a few minutes every Tuesday evening by tying a few flowers together and take them to Mrs. John Balaz who will send them to Chicago Wednesday morning. The Club will appreciate your help in this fine enterprise.

To Hold Award

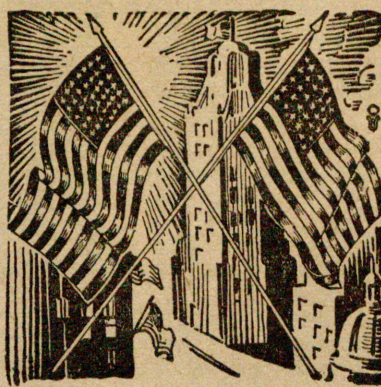

The Wannemacher-Hensel special prize award will be held at the Wannemacher store on July 9th at 2 p. m. The prizes will be as follows: 1st prize, Parker Ladies' Fountain Pen; 2nd prize, Children's wagon; 3rd prize, 32 piece set of dishes; 4th prize, men's watch chain; 5th prize silver cake plate; 6th prize basket of groceries.

Tinley Considering Sewer Project

Tinley Park is considering the installation of a sanitary sewer system and treating plant as a PWA project. At the meeting of the village board Monday night plans and estimates on the cost of the proposed project were presented to the board. The total cost would be $281,000 of which the village will have to raise $39,000. Another meeting of the board was to be held this week to further consider the matter.

Lesson for July 3

A CHOICE OF LOYALTIES

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 1:2-6; 24:14-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. Joshua 24:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Choosing Sides.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Loyal Leader.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Choice of Loyalties.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Man's Highest Allegiance.

"Lives of great men all remind us," according to the poet, that we too may make our lives sublime, and thus leave our footprints in the shifting sands of time. The study of biography is interesting, instructive, and often challenging. When we enter the field of Bible biography we bring into consideration an additional and fundamental factor, namely, the power and grace of God working in and through a surrendered life. All strength of character and ability is a gift of God, but its glory is largely veiled and its usefulness definitely limited, if not actually perverted, because there is no recognition of the foundation of true greatness, which is faith in and loyalty to God.

During the next three months we are to share in the study of the life stories of great men and women which will not only stimulate ambitions, but which also reveal what God can do through those who are ready to follow Him.

Moses, God's great leader for Israel, having brought them out of the land of bondage and through the terrible wilderness, is about to leave them. God's workman is about to die, but His work is to go on. God is not taken by surprise.

I. A Prepared Man Takes Command (1:3-6).

"Moses is dead; now therefore arise." Life is like that. "The king is dead; long live the king," is the cry of those who live under monarchies, as one ruler dies and his successor takes over the throne. Until that day when there shall be "time no longer," men must put away their sorrow and go on. Three words characterize the commission.

1. Promise (vv. 2-4). God gave the land to Israel. Every place that Joshua planted his foot upon was to be his possession, even as God has promised Moses. A river lay between; there were walled and armed cities to be taken; there were even giants in the land, but God promised it to Joshua; and he took it by faith.

God has given us many promises, too. If we are fearful, poverty-stricken, powerless Christians, it is because we do not believe God.

2. Power (v. 5). No man is able to stand against God's servant who is doing God's will, in God's way, in God's time. It was true of Joshua; it is true today. Men set up their opposition to God's plan and program with the assumed belief that because they have position, power, or money, they can readily crush the poor little band of Christian workers. Russia tried it. They even "abolished" God. But religion thrives in Russia, secretly perhaps, but none the less sincerely and successfully.

3. Courage (v. 6). To serve God means to be assured of His help. Faith lays hold of that fact and the whole man becomes courageous.

II. An Experienced Man Gives Counsel (24:14-21).

More than two decades have passed since the appointment of Joshua to lead Israel. God has fulfilled every promise. Israel is in the Promised Land. Before the aged leader dies he calls the leaders of his people together to urge them to continue in the way of faith and loyalty to God. This he does by:

1. Example (v. 15). "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." No man can honestly and effectively call others to devotion to the Lord unless he sets them an example.

2. Instruction (vv. 18-19). Remembering God's dealings with them, the people declare their determination to serve the Lord. They spoke rather glibly. Joshua instructs them. God is not interested in lip service. He does not need them so much as they need Him. He does not look upon their confession of Him, if they continue to live in sin.

3. Warning (v. 20). God will visit His judgment on His people if they forsake Him and turn away—such is Joshua's warning. We who look back to the history of Israel know that they did forsake Him, and that the judgment of God is still upon them. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7) is God's warning through Paul to the Christian.

Started only a few years ago, bicycle trains each summer Sunday carry outdoor enthusiasts to rural haunts where they spend the day exercising, returning home that night. Nowadays you can cycle anywhere and use a bicycle for almost any purpose.

BETTER THAN WALKING...

And just as good exercise, too! In former years cycling—like all sports—was a pleasure for the unencumbered. Nowadays Mother and Father take Junior right along with them, the little fellow riding comfortably in any of several specially-built buggies. The revival of this sport from the gay '90s is a Twentieth Century marvel, but it was a good revival because America now gets outdoors more often and enjoys health-giving exercise. Try it sometime!

Here's the latest thing in bicycles, complete with lights, horn and a built-in tool kit under the seat. Most people own their own bicycles, but in many places you can rent one for the day at a very nominal charge.

This romantic couple liked cycling, but they didn't want to leave their dogs at home. The result: Bowser rides comfortably in a basket and everybody's happy. An important note in the modern cycling hobby is the new type of costumes, briefer, healthier and permitting greater enjoyment of this exhilarating sport.

FAMOUS STORIES

Beowulf Saga

Tale of Valor

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

AS A youth Beowulf had the reputation of being the bravest among his tribe. Swimming, fighting, and fishing in the open boats of the northmen gave sturdiness and valor to him and to his friends. When he was still young he became known as a chieftain warrior, partly because his father was king, but also because the warriors liked to follow him in battle.

There came a message one day from Hrothgar, Beowulf's uncle, whose kingdom lay just across the waters, in the land known today as Denmark. The message begged that Beowulf and his warriors would come over and help rid the land of a fearful dragon, named Grendel.

At once Beowulf and a chosen group of his best men launched their boats and set out for the land of their kinsmen. On their arrival, Hrothgar gave a feast in the long mead hall. While this feasting and joy reigned, there sounded a roar. It was Grendel!

Battle to Death.

The monster seized a warrior with each hand, knocked the two together, and began to eat them for his supper. But the dragon was safely away before anything was done.

The next night Beowulf was ready. When Grendel approached, Beowulf met him and there ensued

Beowulf Triumphs.

Having killed the mother dragon he went into the cavern and found the body of Grendel, from which he cut the head to use as a trophy. Carrying this, he began his ascent to the surface of the lake, where he found his warriors mournful for their leader whom they feared dead.

When the king had become an old man, he heard of a vast horde of treasure which a fire drake had discovered; the treasure had been buried three centuries before by an earl. Coveting this treasure for his people, Beowulf determined to have it. Only one warrior out of the entire kingdom dared to follow his lord into such a battle.

Long and arduously Beowulf fought with this monster. The dragon charged once, and a second time, but Beowulf guarded himself. A third time the dragon hurled himself at his enemy and this time he fastened his fangs in the throat of the king. Rushing to the aid of his king, the faithful warrior thrust his sword into the side of the dragon and forced him to loosen his grip on Beowulf. Although the warrior's arm was burned, he stayed with the king. Beowulf recovered himself and plunged his knife into the coils of the fire drake, cutting him through.

Soon after the death of the dragon, the wound in the king's throat grew worse, with swelling and pain. There was a fever which grew hotter and hotter until the king knew that he was to die. He rewarded his faithful warrior by making him his successor, and he divided the treasure among his subjects. Reminding his people of the glory of their race, the hero died.

TINLEY PARK

Review No. 160 of the Woman's Benefit Association, held an initiation June 24th in the PTA room of the school house in Tinley Park.

Members of Reviews Nos. 72, 82, 39 and Mrs. Howard's Review of Chicago came out on a specially chartered bus to attend the ceremony and to welcome the Tinley Park Review into the Association. Bell Hendricks, presiding president, Dulcie Murphy, past president, Louise Carroll, Lady of Ceremony and the ladies from Review No. 71 performed the initiation ritual. There were twenty-six candidates initiated.

The work was beautifully done and Sunset Review of Tinley Park desire to thank these girls for the wonderful way this work was done. Refreshments were served consisting of cake and ice cream. The hostesses were: Mrs. A. Swanson, Mrs. A. Johnson, Mrs. Zylpha Johnson, Mrs. E. Nugent, Mrs. Dunham and Mrs. Hatt.

A beautiful purse donated by Mrs. Powers was awarded to Mrs. Smith of Review 72 of Chicago. It netted the Tinley Club $5, who are grateful to Mrs. Powers. Also they thank Mrs. Swanson for the lovely solo of Ave Marie.

Those initiated were: Mesdames: Johnston, Oliver, Bothwell, E. J. Sayre, Hatt, Franzen, Swanson, A. Johnson, Zylpha Johnson, Dunham, Standlee, Brehm, Willman, Dykstra, Bartsch, Israel, Wright, Powers, E. Nugent, Casterline, Keup, Norris, D. Aikens, L. Christy and the Misses Standlee, Lawrence, Betty Nugent. We are sorry to report the illness of our musician Mrs. Ruth Bacon and hope she will soon recover.

Regular meetings from now on every 2nd and 4th Thursday of the month in the PTA room of the school

To all members who expect to attend the WBA rally Thursday evening June 30 in the Morrison hotel in Chicago, a special bus has been chartered and will leave Mels Gas Station at 6:45; Funk's Lunch Room 6:50 and 170th street at 7 o'clock. Please be at one of these places. For further information see Mrs. D. Murphy or Mrs. Johnston.

The WBA desire to thank the American Legion Post No. 615 of Tinley Park for the second prize won by them in the parade on June 19th.

They also want to thank all members who marched, especially their Juniors; their Captain, Mrs. J. Brehm who led with the banner; Ernest and Marilyn Sayre who carried the American flag and who wore white sailor suits; the Misses Bartsch and Willman, in blue sailor suits, carrying the American flag; to their first Junior, Miss Oliver, who was in the small float; the other Miss Oliver as Miss Liberty; to their little Bunny Girl, little Miss Powers; Miss Nugent and Loraine Cupp and Master Dean who so ably pulled this small float; to all members who helped in anyway to make this exhibit a success; to the ladies who made the capes and to Mrs. Irene Bartsch who was chairman of this affair.

Mrs. Bert Fulton who injured her leg in a fall several weeks ago, is slowly improving.

The Royal Neighbors Sewing Club met in the home of Mrs. Ethel Wannamacher Monday afternoon. Eight members were present and a guest, Mrs. Zylpha Johnson. The next meeting will be Monday July 11, in the home of Mrs. Helen Chapman. All right Sunshine sisters try and be present.

Mrs. Pauline Hoar of Chicago, mother of Frank Hoar, passed away Thursday June 23 at the age of 85. Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Joseph A. George, Superintendent of the Englewood Deaconess hospital on Monday June 27. Interment was made in Mount Hope cemetery.

Merger of Two Church Groups Makes History

With the close of the General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed church in session at Columbus, Ohio the past week, there ended one of the most historic sessions not only for that Church but for the entire Christian Church.

For with this session the merger of two old denominations, the Evangelical Synod of North America and the Reformed Church in the U. S., consummated a union entered into 4 years ago on the basis

Bugle Calls

By Zeb Potter

Some of the women folks have been complaining about the bread moulding. It must be the damp weather we're having lately.

Wedding bells rang out in Waukegan for Bob Fulton. Congratulations Bob and best wishes for a happy wedded life.

Orland Park wants a sidewalk built with Federal money. O. K. Orland Park, let's hope you get it. Chicago only wants a subway.

On the Fourth of July the school bands from Mokena, Tinley Park, and New Lenox will play at the picnic at Frankfort grove. Let's all get out and toot for the 'kids'. You'll enjoy the music.

So the tax on alcohol is going up. Well, well, will that put some of us on the 'water wagon'?

At the Marley Fourth of July a pageant of America in history will be shown. That should be interesting. Let's call around.

Chief of Police at Racine, Wis. wants to hang license plates on the 'kids'. He claims it will be easier to find a lost child. Question- How long will a tag hang on a child who is out playing?

Stock market prices are going up. Looks like good times this fall. I hope too.

Young farmer down in Missouri was bothered with his neck. Doctors found he had broken his neck. What a pain in the neck that was.

Years ago in Joliet when the court house was being erected a young workman fell from the building and was killed. His mother lost her mind from grief. Each day she would pass the building and condemn it for the loss of her son.

The big countries of Europe want to stop the Civil War in Spain. Well they had better hurry up or there won't be any scenery left after those air raids.

Some newly weds living in a garage in Joliet were just burned out by fire. That's a tough start for the young people.

Chicago boys talk vendor out of eighty-six ice cream bars. The 'kid' promised to go out and sell them on a commission basis, but did not return. He'll keep that up until someday he will come in contact with the wrong kind of bars, cell bars.

Did you see the Legion Parade at Tinley Park last Sunday? Well if you didn't you missed a good time. It takes the Legion boys to put on a good show. Hats off to the Legion.

Who has a good recipe for jams, jellies and preserves. We would like to print some recipes in this column and give credit to those who send in, by printing their names and addresses at the bottom of the recipes. Help, help, help.

Your humble scribe met your editor the other day in Joliet making his rounds. Your editor has worked hard folks to give you a good paper.

English princess studies bed making and cooking. Well now 'ain't that something to get excited about. How about the mothers who have made beds and cooked for years, they didn't study it; they just had to do it to keep the family going.

Over in Plainfield a man makes small sized trains to run in amusement parks. He has been busy at this work for a good many years. It seems to me that's a better game to make a living at, than trying to work on a larger sized locomotive.

Speaking of trains, the Santa Fe is putting back several thousand shopmen on a four and five day a week basis. Well that's good news. When the men go back to work they are happier, and can spend more money with the merchants. Trade gets better.

History repeats itself. Twenty-five years ago in Joliet a rejected suitor sued his former girl friend for the return of the engagement ring that he had given her. In Chicago last week a similar case was heard before a judge. In the last case the judge ruled that the ring was an outright gift and that the woman could retain possession of it.

They just released a man from Stateville prison who has served six months for a crime to which another man had confessed. These errors in justice occur now and then, but it isn't so pleasant when one has to do time for them.

Papers from London state that

Barbara Hutton the heiress to the Woolworth millions is having difficulties with her husband, a Danish count. She wants the child. American girls with money want husbands with titles; they get them and look what happens. The count gets the money, the girl gets the title; the divorce court gives the decree and just another large slice of the family fortune remains in Europe. It's made in this country and spent in Europe.

In Siberia the Russians are laying eight inch water pipe in ground that is frozen the year round. To prevent the water from freezing, a small pipe carrying live steam is placed along side.

Out in Wyoming rattlesnake hunting is becoming an interesting sport. The hunters have found out that the snakes travel in a straight line. When one is killed a stake is driven to mark the spot. Thus the den is located and the entire nest is killed.

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaagen

The Merry Maids 4-H Club held a lawn party last Thursday at the home of Luella and Alice Koehel. Betty Vollrath, Kathrine Heisner and Lois Weitendorf. Plans were made to visit the Weber Dairy. The next meeting will be with Eleanor Keuch July 5th.

The club went thru the Weber Dairy plant in Joliet last Thursday. It was a very interesting trip and enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Christine Sangmeister entertained the Martha Sewing Circle in her home last Thursday in honor of her 65th birthday. Beside the club members, there were present, Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Gerhold, Mrs. Anna Hellermann and Mrs. Julia Geitslinger of Joliet. Dinner was served at noon in the home of her son, Geo. Sangmeister, by Mrs. Geo. Sangmeister, Mrs. Conrad Sangmeister, Mrs. Ernest Bennett and Mrs. Bror Johnson. "Happy Birthday" was sung at the table, led by the president, Mrs. Wm. Lankenau who also presented a gift to Mrs. Sangmeister from the club. The afternoon was spent in quilting and in the evening, supper was served.

Last Thursday evening a group of young people celebrated the 21st birthday of Glenn Schroeder with a party in St. Mary's hall in Mokena. Games were played and a fine lunch was served. Glenn received many gifts.

The Amite Sewing Club surprised Mrs. Wm. Wischover in her home last Tuesday afternoon. Since Mrs. Wischover broke her leg ten weeks ago, she has not been able to attend the club meetings.

A group of relatives, friends and neighbors surprised Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Scheer in their home Friday evening in honor of their 35th wedding anniversary. The evening was spent informally. Many gifts were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Scheer. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Zechlin visited Mrs. Robert Onan and her new born son in the Oak Park hospital last Sunday evening. Mrs. Onan will be known as the daughter of Mrs. Rose Baumgartner Lucas of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Maples and son of Elwood, Ind., are spending this week in the Chas. Pfaff, Jr., home.

Sunday evening, Miss Rosalind Aswell, Geo. Tremaine and Kenneth Aswell of Blue Island and Louise Scheer motored to Gary, Ind., in Mr. Aswell's new Buick, where he was scheduled to play an evening's engagement with an orchestra.

Mrs. E. H. Koerner of Los Angeles, Cal., is visiting in the home of her father, Conrad Sippel.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tinker of Nebraska are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Frank Tinker.

The Scheer family attended the funeral of Mr. Naumann of Elkhart, Ind., Monday. Burial was in Chicago. They also attended on Wednesday the funeral of Valentine Scheer in Mokena.

Mr. August Knater is ill in his home.

Mrs. Wm. Block is very ill in her home.

The condition of Ralph Bettenhausen remains about the same.

The annual outing of St. Peter's Evangelical church was postponed from last Sunday because of the rain. It will be held in the Art Geuther's woods this Sunday July 3. Come out and enjoy the day of church service, meeting old friends and a splendid pageant in the evening.

The Amite Sewing Club met with Mrs. Walter Pfaff Tuesday. Plans were made for their annual outing. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaagen July 12.

Regardless of the rain, the show, "Little Man" sponsored by the business men, was well attended Saturday night.

IN MEMORIAM

KNIPPEL — In fond and loving memory of our dear son and brother Raymond J. Knippel, who left us so suddenly eleven years ago today, June 29, 1927.

Eleven sad and lonely years have past

Since our great sorrow fell;

The shock that we received that day

We still remember well.

'Tis hard to break the tender cord

That love has bound the heart,

'Tis hard, so hard, to speak the words;

"We must forever part."

Dearest loved one we have laid thee

In the peaceful grave's embrace,

But thy memory will be cherished

'Till we see thy heavenly face.

Signed—

FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHER and SISTER.

QUIET, ECONOMICAL OPERATION

This Airate Fan for nighttime cooling delivers 6000 cubic feet of air per minute.

Corrects Air Conditions Throughout the Entire House

• Give yourself and your family cooler bedtime comfort this summer with an Attic Fan Nighttime Cooling System. Here's how simply it works: Open your windows in the cool of the evening. With the Attic Cooling System at work, out goes the hot daytime air and the blanket of stuffy air that collects in the attic—and in comes cool, fresh night air, usually 15 to 20 degrees cooler in this part of the country—cool air circulates through the house till you get up. In the morning shut the windows to store up the cool air from the night before. Your house will be cooler 24 hours of the day!

What could be easier to operate? And it's easy to own, too! . . . Ask about the special payment terms on an Attic Cooling System for your home. Visit your Public Service Company office today for complete details.

To cover interest and other costs, a somewhat higher price is charged for appliances sold on deferred payments

Homer Man Finds Interesting History of Ancient English Cathedral In Which His Mother Was Christened

A very interesting history of a famous old-time Episcopal church, known as St. Mary's Church of Melton Mowbray, England was found by Mr. George J. Bump, member of a widely and well-known Homer Township family, in the public library in Los Angeles, California, recently.

The history of this church has a special significance to the Bump family and their relatives in Homer Township and other parts of the United States for the reason that Mr. Bump's mother, Elizabeth Lucy Dixon Bump was born in England on September 2, 1839 and was christened and confirmed in this church. She later came to Homer Township in May 1855 at the age of 16 years. On April 13, 1859 she was united in marriage to Mr. Leander Bump, by the Rev. Elder Dibell, father of the late Judge D. Dibell of Joliet.

Mrs. Bump's father, George Dixon was a mason and marble worker in England and often told of taking up bodies buried beneath the floor of this great old church generations back. The dead were buried in leaden caskets and only royal families and those of royal blood were buried beneath the floor of this church. Others were buried in the church yard. The leaden caskets had glass tops and the remains of the deceased could be viewed dressed in elaborate shrouds and silk stockings. If the caskets were opened to the light and air, the bodies would disappear in dust instantly.

Mrs. Bump's right foot print and initials and date of church membership, also those of her sister and brother are marked in leaden plates in the steeple of this ancient edifice. These incidents were always fresh in the memory of Mrs. Bump. In later years she was a member of the Congregational church at Wells Corner in Homer Township for many years. She died May 2, 1913.

According to the history unearthed by Mr. Bump, St. Mary's church of Melton Mowbray is located in Lancashire, England and is a cathedral in the miniature consisting of nave, choir, transept and a tower rising from the intersection and a great deal of style is present. The west front houses the lower stage of the tower. Four central piers and arches are of early English date. The south transept is rather of later date as are the nave and chancel, the later dating about 1320

A. D. Both transepts have aisles, the upper portions of the tower and cloistery are perpendicular.

Special attention is called in the history to the beautiful porch at the west end which with its doorway and eight niches is in the time of Edward II. The cloistery also is very graceful and contains 48 windows each of three lights. The nave is separated from the aisles by six pointed arches clustering columns. The west window of five lights is beautiful. There is a tomb in the south aisle with a recumbent cross-legged figure which dates from 1543. Since 1850 the work of restoring this noble edifice has been going on.

There are several modern painted windows, some of very artistic workmanship. There are also several chained books dating from the time of Queen Elizabeth.

Opposite the church is the Maison Dun or Hudson Bede House, built in 1641. It has several aged inmates, but a part of the building is used for a museum and library.

Near the town of Melton is Egerston Lodge, the hunting residence of the Earl of Melton.

ORLAND PARK

The outdoor picture shows which are being put on here every Saturday night are drawing good sized crowds. Last Saturday the show had to be held in the school auditorium due to rain.

The Royal eighth Juveniles will meet on July 8 at the home of Miss Betty Putoff.

The Royal Neighbor Juveniles will monthly meeting in the Creer hall last Thursday.

A large number of Orland people attended the funeral of Valentine Scheer of Tinley Park held at Mokena Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Ruth Loebe who has been teaching in the Kalamazoo, Michigan college, sailed with a party of eight friends from New York on the American liner "New York" Wednesday for England and a tour of Continental Europe. The party will travel thru England, Switzerland, Holland, Germany and Austria. They expect to return the latter part of August on the German liner "Europa". The trip across will take 7 days and the return trip 5 days.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kay are leaving tonight for Cherry Creek, New York. They will visit relatives there until after the holidays.

Miss Irene Homerding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Homerding of Orland and Victor Schleiss of Chicago were married Saturday morning in the St. Michael church, Father Rooney performed the ceremony. Miss Olive Overs and Mr. Thomas Wilburn were the maid of honor and best man, respectively.

The bride was attired in white lace; the groom in a white suit. The couple departed for Niagara Falls the same evening. They will reside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Homerding.

Miss Irene Wallglen of Orland returned this week from a trip to New England states and Canada.

Robt. Miller and Robt. Toelle returned last Saturday night from a pleasant vacation at "Boys State". Boys State is a convention of boy scouts and junior legionnaires held annually at the Illinois State Fair ground.

As each of the 1400 boys were accounted for, they were given a number; the even numbers formed the Nationalist party, the odds the Federalists. Both parties nominated a governor and an election was held.

Each group of 80 boys constituted a county and took the name of some past commander of the American Legion as their county name. The counties were divided into two cities and they also elected and appointed their officials.

Bob Toelle was appointed Health Commissioner and sheriff. Bob Miller was elected Chief of Police. Their duties were to keep peace. They stopped fights and brought the defendants to trial. The usual punishment was to clean up the barracks. One offender was sentenced to 25 minutes in the jug for tripping.

They visited the city of Springfield and were shown Lincoln's monument and were taken through the capitol building. Governor Horner addressed the convention along with numerous other speakers.

Various outdoor sports such as hiking, swimming and baseball occupied most of the leisure hours.

The two boys arrived in Joliet by train where they were picked up and brought home by Mr. Francis Glahn.

"My heart!" Gunnar said hoarsely. "My dearest heart!" He could not have known what he looked like, but he remembered to smile at her. Mrs. Dana came and pulled at his arm but he shook her off and bent lower, still smiling. "My heart!"

Sarah Lynn's eyes widened, the pupils distending, and a strange look of fright and something stranger still came into them. "No!" she cried. "Go away! Please, please go away!"

Mrs. Dana was pressing the button. "Now, do you hear?" she triumphed. "Do you hear?"

Gunnar thought it was delirium. He said gently, "It is Gunnar, my dearest one—to stay with you always!" He bent to kiss her.

But Sarah Lynn, pinioned and helpless, able to move nothing but her eyes, nevertheless, with every fiber of her being repelled him. "No, no! Go away! Never come again—never—come again!"

The press played it up and the radio buzzed with bulletins about Gunnar Thorwald's return flight across the Atlantic, but no newspapers came into Sarah Lynn's hospital room, and they never tuned in for news flashes—only for music or comedy programs, or an occasional playlet which was known to be pleasant and amusing.

Gunnar's name was not mentioned after the day of his visit. When, at length, he had been compelled to leave the room, he could hear Sarah Lynn's voice, spent but shrill, saying to her mother, "Make him go away! Make him go away!"

He had not waited to hear her mother's answer, hovering over her in an agony of protective tenderness, and he did not know that Sarah Lynn had cried, quietly, ceaselessly, for three days. The tears trickled out of the corners of her eyes and slid down her temples into her hair, and she could not lift her hand to wipe them away.

Her doctors and nurses were disturbed, but they didn't seem able to control it. "This isn't helping any," Miss Burke said.

"It is just the reaction, the great relief, after that distressing and cruel interview the other day," Mrs. Dana insisted. "Darling, you are safe with Mother, and no one is going to bother you again! Mother's right here!" She saw the nurse's cool gray eyes upon her and followed her out into the aggressively clean-smelling corridor. "It is perfectly natural," she said rather combatively. "She regards him as the cause of her misfortune, so of course she shrinks from him."

"You think so?" Miss Burke said levelly. "Well, I can't give all the answers, but that wouldn't be my diagnosis." She went away with her noiseless, heelless tread. She was glad she was going on her vacation; she hated to have cases get her as this one did.

Sarah Lynn persistently asked for the old family doctor from Los Gatos and they were obliged to send for him. He could contribute nothing, they felt sure, but if it was a comfort to the child—

"Suppose you just step out and let us have our visit alone," he said mildly. Then he sat down and patted her hand. "Well, Sarah Lynn, I brought you into the world, as the old saying goes, and I saw you through measles and chicken-pox and the rest of 'em. I'm mighty sorry about this. Was there anything special you wanted to say to me?"

She could not turn her head, but her eyes turned to him. "You tell the truth, always. Am I going to die?"

"No," he said heartily. "I'm not up on all the details of your case, of course, but I had a talk with Dunn. No, there's no doubt about it, Sarah Lynn; you're going to live."

"Must I?"

He cleared his throat. "I guess you must, girl. I guess that's your chore."

Sarah Lynn said after a long pause, "I know doctors can't—kill people. It's only animals that can be—what do they say?—put out of their misery." But can't they—just not make people live?"

He shook his grizzled head. "That's their chore, Sarah Lynn, making people live." Then he said briskly, "But it's not going to be like this, you know, always."

Sarah Lynn said, "They used to give me stuff all the time to make me sleep. I wish they still did. If I have to live, I think they might do that for me."

"Pain still bad?"

"Not my back . . . my head, my heart. Will you ask them to give it to me again?"

"No," the old country doctor said. "I won't do that, Sarah Lynn. You wouldn't want me to. I guess it took plenty of grit to go up in your plane, and more than plenty to come down in a parachute. But I believe you have a lot of grit left."

He stood up, looking down at her, his eyes very bright. "Yes, you've got to live, Sarah Lynn."

Conrad Jordan was Gunnar's only defender. All Danavale condemned him hotly. The elders considered it a blessing that he had gone—his presence, they understood from her mother, was only a torment to the poor child—but certainly he had acted most shabbily.

"What a heel!" Sarah Lynn's young brother said. "Gosh—what a heel!"

Because of his defection, because he was the alien, the intruder in the clan, Danavale had convinced itself that Gunnar Thorwald was, indirectly, the reason for Sarah Lynn's tragic accident.

Lynn Dana and Conrad Jordan agreed to cease discussing it. The flier stood loyally by the ace.

"I don't see what else the boy could do, Lynn. She turned from him—she shrank from him—in horror. She begged him to go away forever; she told him repeatedly that she never wanted to see him again."

"But—in her condition—"

"No; she was not under opiates; she was absolutely clear. Upon my

She begged him to go away forever.

word, I don't see how he could have acted otherwise."

Conrad Jordan went back to Tahoe to close his lodge for the winter. The man in the wheeled-chair wrote to his traveling cousin:

"I cannot help feeling that Gunnar acted ignobly. And yet—what could he accomplish by staying? If Sarah Lynn is to be helpless, what, after all, would they have in common? It was, we must in justice remember, a plant of hasty growth; not deeply rooted, I dare say. Flying brought them together. But now—even without her injury, I doubt if he could have fitted himself into our scene; eagles don't make barnyard fowls."

"They are bringing her home from the hospital in a few days. Her mother has turned over her own sitting-room to Sarah Lynn. Duncan Van Doren is a pattern of devotion, they tell me—constantly there, reading aloud, always on the job. Well, perhaps it helps a little; the test comes later, when they know whether she has a chance of more than partial recovery."

The typewriter was silent while he looked up at the pipe-rack above his fireplace, done in painstaking pyrography with unconvincing poppies painted in, and below, in rather wobbly letters, the verse:

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul.

The girl who had made that for him, the golden-curl, violet-eyed, mother-of-pearl maiden who had sobbed that she would sit beside his chair all the long days of her life, had not been put to the test. If she had not died—He wondered. It was a fragrant memory.

Mrs. Edwin Dana's upstairs sitting-room had always been a place of cozy cheer, but now it fairly radiated and exuded joyous serenity. People came into the room with rising inflections, stepping lightly on the balls of their feet. They sometimes paused outside the door to arrange their smiles.

Miss Pennington sat there with her sewing, and young Bill ricketed in on his return from school, and her father and the older brothers came for brisk and breezy chats before or after their dinner.

Her mother and Duncan, one or the other, were always there.

"Did you ever see such devotion?" people asked, almost reverently. "If Cousin Adelaide isn't the very essence of self-sacrificing mother-love! And Duncan, well, if ever a fellow deserved a reward—"

Mary Dana Webster told her husband, "I loathe having to admit it, because I never could see him with a binocular, but Duncan is certainly a wonder about this. Honestly, he is. I never gave him credit for really caring, tremendously; I thought the whole affair had been motivated by the mothers. But he must care, Neddy."

Her husband turned a lathered face. "Probably does, poor kid."

"Of course, I think he's getting a great kick out of his own nobility. No, really—I don't say that cattily. It doesn't detract from his credit. But I do think he dramatizes himself—Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, heartlessly flying home, deserting his helpless, paralyzed sweetheart; Duncan Van Doren standing by. Well, that's natural enough. And she gets more beautiful by the hour, and I don't believe she was ever happier in her life."

"Oh, come, now," he reached for his shaving lotion. "That's pretty thick, old gall! After all her grief and shock and—"

She stood her ground. "I can understand it. Cousin Adelaide is one of those born-to-commanders, and for the first time Sarah Lynn is obeying. Even as a baby, she wriggled away, and was a contrary child, and she wouldn't make a proper debut, and she wouldn't be engaged to Duncan Van Doren. And then she would fly, and she would marry a strange foreign flier. Now her mother's got her, utterly. She's just as much in a cage as those jittery canaries. She broods over her and feeds her like a baby bird in a nest."

To her husband's bewilderment she burst into angry tears.

CHAPTER XIV

Slowly, almost imperceptibly, month by month and then week by week, Sarah Lynn improved, inching her snail-like way up the hill of progressive recovery. The eminent bone specialist was delighted, the local doctor enthusiastic. She could turn her head; she could use her hands; she could have the bed tilted; the frame and the cast gave way to a brace. Joy, dewy and triumphant, pulsed through the pretty room, and Aunt Helena wore prophetic robes, swimming in the gleaming lawns between the two houses.

Sarah Lynn told herself, "The inside of my mind is just like the inside of this room: it is peaceful and warm and I will keep flowers blooming in it and canaries singing and kittens playing. I won't let Lightning come into my room or into my mind because she whines and moans for me to go out and I am never going out any more." She was always faintly smiling and her eyes were never wide open. Her mother felt she needed mental stimulus. "Darling, now you're so marvelously improved, wouldn't it be nice to brush up on your French or review your art history?"

"It would be very nice," Sarah Lynn answered with her strange new docility. She had gained a little flesh and now her dark eyes did not overflow her face so completely.

Duncan read aloud pleasantly in a well-modulated voice which never grew hoarse. At least once a week he put the book down and picked up her hand and kissed it and asked her again to marry him.

"No; I couldn't do that to you, Duncan," she always told him gently. "That would be a dreadful way to repay all your kindness."

"There isn't any question of repayment, Sarah Lynn. But if you think I rate a reward—you know what I want!" His sensitive, fine-featured face would flush and his eyes mist for a moment. There was no possible doubt now as to the depth of Duncan's devotion and it gave him dignity; it actually made him seem larger. A sudden and excruciating toothache sent him to the dentist one afternoon when Mrs. Dana was doing sad duty at a funeral. "I'll call Penny to come and sit with you," he said, hurrying away.

The governess sat down and put on her reading-glasses. "I don't want to go on with Mr. Duncan's book and put him to the bother of catching up," she said. "I picked up some things I've been dipping into myself."

Miss Pennington cleared her throat. "I've been reviewing my Scandinavian history a bit. Fascinating I find it." She kept her pale, protuberant eyes on the page. "The Norse women were very advanced, I was interested to discover, from the earliest periods. Advanced, I mean to say in the sense of their position. Famous housewives understood medicine in a crude way, and had a fine position in society, and were counted almost the equal of men. Very hospitable, they were! The traits of the Norse women—"

There was an odd, muffled sound from Sarah Lynn. "And the Norsemen," she said thinly. "Aren't you going to tell me about the traits of the Norsemen, Penny? Well, it's not necessary: I remember perfectly." She began to recite in a toneless sing-song: "The Norseman had a keen mind; his heart was as much steel as his sword; he loved battle and the stormy seas; he admired the strong, the brave; for the old and feeble he had no interest; for the suffering, no sympathy; the weak he despised."

The old governess stood up. "Oh, my dear! You mustn't—"

"Mustn't what, Penny? Mustn't remember? Then, why did you make me? Why did you make me?" She was trembling and shaking, and the calm and cheer of the pretty room shattered into fragments. "Don't you want me to have any peace?" The greyhound watched her anxiously.

"Oh, my dearie dear! Yes! Yes! But this isn't peace you have now, and I see where you're drifting, and there's no happiness ahead—"

"Happiness? Who's talking about happiness? Peace, I said—peace—the kind I used to have in the hospital when they gave me stuff to kill the pain instead of killing me. Then I learned to drug myself, and you want to take that away, too!" She was crying now, wildly, bitterly.

Miss Pennington put her arms round her. "Hush, poor lamb! Hush! You'll make yourself ill! Dearie, I don't want to torture you but—oh, Sarah Lynn, why did you send him away?"

She stopped crying for a moment. "Because he wanted to go, Penny."

"No, no! That's not true! He was crushed and haggard with sorrow—he was—"

"Yes, he was sorry. But I knew him, Penny. I knew what he thought about life and death. He said: 'To be alive, that is nothing, unless life is good.' And he said old and incurable and helpless people ought to be put out of the way of the well and strong. Survival of the fittest; that was what he believed in."

"No, no!" It was Miss Pennington who was weeping, now. "He didn't mean—" she was holding her, patting her. "And you're going to be well—"

Boys' Military School in Britain to Act as Filter to Aid Army at Large

An experiment has been inaugurated at the Military College of Science at Woolwich, England, which, if successful, will be adopted by similar state institutions: secondary schoolboys and the able young victims of "blind-alley" jobs in mechanical trades may henceforth be instructed in their avocation by a three-year course at the college.

So far instruction there has been entirely confined to officers and enlisted men, who have taken courses varying in length from two years, six months to four days. According to the military expert of the Times of London:

The college aims at acting as a filter through which knowledge shall pass to the army at large. The teachers visualize themselves as trainers of instructors so far as the bulk of their students are concerned, and also, in the advanced class, as trainers of officers for the technical staff of the Master General of the Ordnance.

On the less-advanced technical side one of the more remarkable departments is that in which artificer N. C. O.s receive instruction in the use and repair of wireless sets and fire-control instruments. In the latter subject men of the Territorial army have been receiving instruction to be passed on to anti-aircraft units, particularly in the use of the Vickers predictor, an instrument which has had a great effect on the accuracy of anti-aircraft fire.

Predictors have been successfully tried in Spain, and though at present they cannot be effectively trained on an aircraft flying at more than 270 miles per hour, it is hoped that the limit may be raised to 350 miles per hour. One feature of the apparatus is that the result of the calculation is transmitted to the gun electrically and the gunner does not have to see the aircraft.

Courtship in Mexico

Courtship is a fine art in Mexico. A young man who likes a girl at first studiously avoids her. After two or three weeks, he may give her a significant glance. Then comes a night of serenading, when he stands outside her window and strums a guitar. Soon after that, negotiations begin between her parents and his, and he sends her a rose.

Men of the Mounted

THE SKULL WITH A HOLE IN ITS FOREHEAD

THEY found the headless body of an aged man on the banks of the Bow river right after the ice had gone out, and right away there was a check-up to find out who was missing. That was in June, 1910. Several months passed and then, just as the beautiful Bow was beginning to freeze up again, a trapper stumbled over a small boulder. Later on, upon examining the round thing that had tripped him, the trapper realized that he was handling a human skull. Like a good Canadian he was soon in touch with the Royal Mounted.

A more thorough and extensive search and investigation was soon under way. Within a few yards of where the skull had been picked up, the Mounted saw a strange looking heap which later proved to be a blanket and a cowhide tied with ropes, the whole still frozen solid. The first discovery had come in June, the second in November, and still no one had turned up missing. With everyone accounted for, the only thing the Mounted could do was to store the remains. The check-up of transients and settlers, however, continued; meanwhile a grizzled and widely experienced physician and surgeon examined the remains. The physician announced, a little while later, that the man had been about fifty or sixty, had iron-gray hair, and that the hole in the forehead had been made by a bullet of .22 caliber, and that the bullet had been found imbedded in the skull. Moreover, there had been another bullet found in the body. It had entered from the right side and had coursed upward through both lungs and had lodged in the ribs of the lower left side.

Then a constable had a bright idea. Everyone had been accounted for, he argued, but that was only for the year 1910 or for the months preceding and following the discovery of the headless body. What about last year? After all, the constable argued, the deceased could easily have been done in a year or two years ago, so why not go back a bit? Soon all interest was centered upon the absence of one of the first settlers, an Englishman named Peach. In no time the Mounted discovered that Peach had sold out to a man named Robertson and had then returned to his home in England. Robertson was soon being questioned in a town a hundred miles away, and he corroborated the information of the deal with Peach. Later it was learned that Robertson had moved to Calgary after having bought the Peach homestead and that he had left orders that all mail for Peach be forwarded on to his address in Calgary. Well, this was really the first "break" for the Mounted. Why should Robertson want Peach's mail forwarded to him?

Robertson was again questioned, this time by a Mounted policeman he had never seen before but who knew the results of the first interview.

Robertson's story changed color entirely during this second questioning, but the Mounted policeman kept this discovery entirely to himself. Some days later another Man of the Mounted had a quiet little chat with Robertson, and again the latter's story changed completely. Surely Robertson was tying himself up into a knot. Then he announced that he was going down to a small settlement just a few miles away for a few days' rest, a sort of short vacation.

Instead of alighting at the small town, he stayed on the train and went through to McLeod. Here he proceeded to get drunk and was soon boasting that he had made a cleanup in the Yukon gold fields and was returning to his home in the States. And, as he sat boasting how tough he had been in his time, a constable of the McLeod detachment walked in and very quietly arrested him for the murder of Tucker Peach. Back in Calgary, Robertson tied himself in such a knot of lies and falsehoods that there was nothing else to do but confess. His confederate, one Fisk, had fired the first shot, into Peach's forehead. He, Robertson, had fired the second. Fisk had learned that Peach had a large amount of money hidden somewhere about his homestead cabin, and was scheming to get it when he met Robertson who was planning to buy the Peach homestead. "Buy it," advised Fisk, "then we'll knock him (Peach) on the head and get your money back. Then we'll ransack the cabin and find the two thousand he has hidden somewhere in it. After that, you take the homestead, and I'll take the horses, and we split his money between us when we find it."

No one knows to this day whether Fisk and Robertson found the old man's hoard, but they do know that Canadian law worked fast, and smoothly as these two renegades were tried. Fisk was sentenced to hang. Robertson was given life imprisonment. Inside of a month after capture, both men had begun paying for their awful crime.

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses

CALCIUM

The Captain of the Minerals

Nationally Known Food Authority Explains
How to Include This Vital Food
Element in the Daily Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

A FEW years ago there was an earthquake in the Far West. When the tremors were over, the frightened people looked in dismay upon the damage that had been done. In some places they were saddened by the loss of a great number of their buildings, and in one community, mingled with their sorrow — almost crowding it out of their emotions — was indignant ANGER. For they observed that their schools had suffered greater damage than any other group of buildings in the city.

On every side, the cry of indignation arose. It was all too plain that poor materials had gone into the construction of those schools which were supposed to house children in security.

The most vehement cries went up from the mothers, not only in that community, but all over the country. That is natural, for all mothers believe they have the children's welfare at heart. Unwittingly, however, they may be doing them irreparable harm by failing to feed them the foods that will construct sound bodies, able to withstand the stress and strain of life.

Calcium Starvation

The mineral calcium is to the human body what steel and stone are to a building. It is necessary to construct the bony framework. The mother who fails to consume adequate calcium before her baby is born, or fails to give the child adequate calcium throughout the growing years, is as guilty as the contractor who constructs a school building of poor materials.

Without sufficient calcium, the bones become soft and porous. They break easily and knit slowly after they are broken. They may bend and twist during growth, so that the child who is a victim of calcium deficiency may become bow-legged and deformed, with a malformed chest or enlarged forehead. Rickets — that horrible deficiency disease which causes stunted mis-shapen bodies — may develop. And so may tetany — another scourge of childhood.

Crooked Defective Teeth

The teeth, too, depend upon calcium for the soundness of their structure. When this precious mineral is inadequately provided, the baby teeth may soon decay; the permanent teeth may come in crowded and unsightly — and quickly develop cavities.

There are also many other ways that calcium deficiency may handicap your children. For this mineral is intimately concerned with all the body processes. It increases the strength and pulsations of the heart; helps the blood to coagulate in case of injury, thus effectively aiding in preventing hemorrhage. It strengthens the resistance of the body in fever and other diseases. It tones up the nervous system, lessening nervous tension.

Adults Require Calcium

Adults have a vital need for calcium. A lack of this mineral not only results in defective teeth, but may also be responsible for nervousness, quivering and twitching of the muscles and defective heart action.

To be normal, the full-grown human body must contain more calcium than any other mineral element. Yet, every individual is, of necessity, born calcium-poor. For if the bones were as rigid as they must eventually become, the ordeal of birth would be too difficult for both mother and child.

FOODS RICH IN CALCIUM

Write to C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th Street, New York City, for his list of calcium-rich foods. Use it daily as a guide in planning family menus.

stem vegetables are richer in calcium than other vegetables or fruits, but while their calcium has been found to be well-absorbed by adults, it is not so readily available to children.

Among the vegetables, however, there is a wide variation, turnip tops and dandelion greens providing unusually large amounts.

List of Calcium-Rich Foods

I have prepared a list of foods rich in calcium which I shall gladly send to homemakers upon request. I urge every woman to write for this list and use it in planning the daily diet of herself, her husband and children.

You really need such a list in order to avoid the grave consequences of calcium deficiency, for so many of our common foods are calcium poor that it is possible for a diet to be abundant and varied, and still be inadequate in respect to calcium.

The list of calcium-containing foods will help you do a perfect job of building strong, fine bodies for your children.

There is no joy like the joy of creating perfect, healthy children. The architect and the sculptor stand in awe before the realization of their dreams. But you, the mothers of children, the builders of their bodies, you are the mightiest of all. A diet adequate in calcium, for you and your children, will help you build beautifully, wisely and well. Your reward will be the joy, the pride, the heart-warming satisfaction of having accomplished a worthwhile purpose.

© WNU — C. Houston Goudiss — 1938 — 17

The homemaker's task of providing adequate calcium is complicated by the fact that the body loses large amounts of calcium every day, and this loss is greater during sickness, especially in fever or when one is worried, overworked or has taken too strenuous exercise.

Outstanding nutritionists unanimously agree that the American diet is more deficient in calcium than in any other element. And it is squarely up to the mothers and homemakers to correct this tragic state of affairs, which is undermining their own efficiency and threatening the present health and future happiness of their children.

How to Obtain Calcium

Milk is an outstanding source of calcium. That is why it should form the cornerstone of every balanced diet. Cheese, which is milk in concentrated form, is likewise notable in this respect, and one and one-fourth ounces of American Cheddar cheese are the approximate equivalent of an eight-ounce glass of milk. Charming Midsummer Styles

THE play suit is practically guaranteed to give slim young things a good time at the beach or in the country, because it's so gay and so flattering. And the graceful afternoon dress will make any woman who wears it look slim, cool and smart! Start right in to make whichever one best fits into your plans. You'll be delighted to see how easy it is.

The Play Suit.

The suit itself has pleated shorts and a square neckline. The skirt, shirred at the top, and tied round the waist, may also be worn as a cape, long enough to cover the play suit. Either way, it looks extremely fetching and fluttery. Make this suit of calico, jersey, percale or sharkskin, with the head kerchief to match or contrast.

The Afternoon Dress.

Here's just the type of dress you want for summer afternoons — graceful and soft, with short, full sleeves and deep v-neckline that will be cool on the hottest day. The back is perfectly plain, straight and slenderizing. The jabot ripples at the sides and is plain in front, so that it looks soft without being bulky. The shoulders are smooth, the neckline becomingly snug. For this lovely dress, choose voile, chiffon, georgette or handkerchief lawn.

The Patterns.

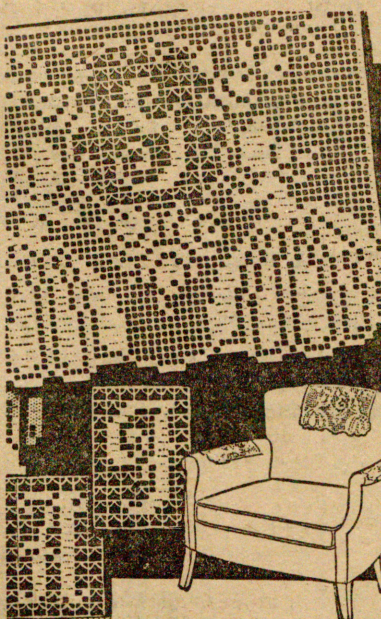

1484 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3 3/4 yards of 39-inch material for the cape-skirt; 3 yards for the play suit. Head kerchief takes 1/8 yard.

1532 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39-inch material for short sleeves; 5 1/4 yards for three-quarter sleeves.

Independence Day

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Again America, from Ocean to Ocean and from Lakes to Gulf, rededicates herself to the Spirit of Liberty that found its noblest expression in our Declaration of Independence.

Again our nation demonstrates to all the world that human freedom is not the hazardous experiment which Europe thought it back in 1776, but a dramatic and enduring success.

That is the significance of Independence Day. That is the fact which makes our nation-wide celebration on July 4 of every year an important event, both within and beyond our national boundaries.

To Americans it means an annual rebaptism in the stream of patriotism. To foreign peoples, covering in the shadow of new despotisms and intolerances, it means a brightening of the beacon of hope which our ancestors kindled in 1776.

On Independence Day we honor the wisdom and the valor of those Signers who knew that no governments ever conferred freedom or opportunity on their subjects; that those blessings could be won only by the spirit of the people themselves.

And in that spirit, the people proved, lay infinite power, infinite endurance. Not the trained troops, not the hired mercenaries, not the great fleets of one of the strongest nations on earth could prevail against it. Sustained and inspired by an unflinching faith, farmers and artisans, unaccustomed to war, beat back those military forces and translated an ideal of freedom into the glorious reality which is America.

In that achievement is demonstrated the height to which the spirit of liberty can soar. Here is evidence to the peoples of all lands of what human freedom means and how it can be won.

Thus Independence Day, though first and foremost an American observance, remains a day of International Inspiration. Annually it emphasizes the strength and the glory of free government. Annually it reminds the world of what can be achieved by a nation created not to make its leaders strong, but to make its people free.
